

Institutional Effectiveness

The Institutional Effectiveness Office identifies and measures outcomes and results across all departments, schools, and programs.

Each area of the University is required to establish performance goals consistent with an academic program or service with particular mission and goals at the University of Dallas. For academic programs, the goals are specific to the knowledge, skills, and/or attitudes students are expected to attain in each program. For non-academic areas, the goals identify measurable outcomes that assess the quality of services provided to the University of Dallas community.
